Observation report #1

This night I was hopefully going to catch some Leonids thought the chances were slim. Anyway, it was a clear night and therefore I couldn't resist. I called a friend from my class which I've only known for about two months. He, just as I, was hoping to see some Leonids. I packed my camera and two rolls of black and white film. When I met my friend (which by the way is named Christopher Smith) I told him that we would walk for about 20 minutes. My estimation couldn't be more wrong as it took almost an hour for us to get there. But we didn't mind as it was beautiful there.

We sat down on a bridge watching the sky. After about an hour we had only seen some meteorites so we realized it wouldn't be a big show this time. Instead I started photographing the sky with various lenses. After showing Chris some constellations and planets we went home.
